"Keep to the Right"

Suppose that you were the biggest man in your profession and your "deadly rival" was as expert in his. Suppose you both loved the same girl. And suppose you were called upon to save the life of your rival, knowing that doing so meant your future happiness, yet failing to do so meant shame, dishonor and disgrace. These questions are answered in a play that will thrill you and show you how much good there is in the worst of us.

SINN FEIN INVITED TO NEW PARLEY

Continued from Page 1. meet the Sinn Fein negotiators on the part of the previous correspondence between De Valera and Lloyd George, the prime minister, holding this to be a basis which might involve Great Britain in a recognition of Irish sovereignty. Great Britain's position on this point was fundamental to the existence of the British empire, the premier declared.

Mr. Lloyd George, however, received the offer of a conference "with a view to ascertaining how the association of Ireland with the community of nations known as the British empire may best be reconciled with Irish national aspirations," proposing London as the place and Oct. 11 as the date.

Griffith Clears Air. Mr. De Valera, it is pointed out, here has already agreed to confer on the question of the association of Ireland with the empire, has reiterated the decision of the Dail that its negotiators would consider themselves representatives of an independent country. Since then, however, Arthur Griffith, who will be the chief negotiator for the Sinn Fein should the conference be held, has been quoted as declaring the Sinn Fein never asked the British government to recognize the claim to Irish independence, as a preliminary to a conference.

Thus the view held in some quarters here is that the Sinn Fein can now accept Mr. Lloyd George's invitation without abandoning its own standpoint.

TEXT OF NOTE FROM PREMIER TO IRELAND

Glasgow, Scotland.—The text of Premier Lloyd George's reply to the latest note from Eamonn De Valera, which was dispatched to Dublin early Thursday, follows: "Sir: His Majesty's government have given close and earnest consideration to the correspondence which has passed between us since their invitation to you to send delegates to a conference at Inverness. In spite of their sincere desire for peace, and in spite of the more conciliatory tone of your latest communications, they cannot enter into a conference upon the basis of this correspondence.

"Notwithstanding your personal assurance to the contrary which they much appreciate, it might be argued in the future that the acceptance of a conference on this basis had involved them in a recognition which no British government can accord. On the point, they must guard themselves against any possible doubt. There is no purpose to be served by any further interchange of explanations and argumentative communications upon this subject. The position taken by His Majesty's government is fundamental to the existence of the British empire and they cannot alter it.

"Urges Another Effort. "My colleagues and I remain, however, keenly anxious to make, in cooperation with your delegates, another determined effort to explore every possibility of a settlement by personal discussion.

"The proposals which we have already made have been taken by the whole world as proof that our endeavors for reconciliation and settlement are no empty form and we feel that conference, not correspondence, is the most practical and such as we ardently desire to achieve.

"We therefore send you herewith a fresh invitation to a conference in London on October 11, which we can meet your delegates as the spokesmen of the people whom you represent with a view to ascertaining how the association of Ireland with the community of nations known as the British empire, may be best reconciled with Irish national aspirations."

GARAGE INSURANCE HEARINGS OCT. 4

Evansville Man Will Fight for $10,890 Under New Law.

Hearings will be held in the Rock county circuit court, starting Oct. 4, on the combined suits of E. L. Bellman, Evansville, against six insurance companies, for losses suffered in the incendiary fire of a garage in which Bellman owned half.

The case is founded on a new issue of law for courts in southern Wisconsin. Laws relating to partnership—whether one partner can be held responsible for the criminal act of another—will decide the action.

Partner Was Absolved. Bellman and J. E. Williams were partners in a garage in Evansville. The building and contents were destroyed in the fire. Williams was arrested on a charge of arson and arraigned.

Under the examination by Attorney Thomas J. Bellman, Williams was shown the stand testimony. "My partner, Bellman, knew nothing of my intention of setting the fire. He is innocent of any blame," Williams testified.

Williams was sentenced to Wisconsin, where he is serving the term imposed by the court. On the night of the fire, Bellman was in Madison. On a writ of habeas corpus and testificandum, Williams will be brought to Janesville from prison to testify.

Claim of Property Loss is about $10,890, according to the papers, the proof of loss being signed by Mr. Bellman. The total amount of insurance is $10,890.

Attorneys for the plaintiff, R. M. Richmond, Evansville, and the Nolan firm of this city, will contest the claims of the insurance company that Bellman was deprived of the insurance money because the fire was intentional on the part of Williams.

Madison attorneys will represent the insurance companies, who have consented to a consolidation of the cases and trial before Judge George Grimm.

"I am making an examination of the physical properties of the different institutions so that when requests come before me for improvements, I will know exactly what should be done," said Governor Blaine before leaving Madison.

He is inspecting schools in the northern part of the state this week.

Maintenance of "Y" Concerns Entire City

"Whereas, The Y. M. C. A. in our city is performing a highly constructive and necessary work; and

"Whereas, The Y. M. C. A. as an organization has proven by its long experience in our city that it is well equipped in organization and leadership to do the community work in which it is engaged; and

"Whereas, We own a majority of co-operation with the men of the board of directors and the staff who have produced through the Y. tangible evidences of good work; therefore,

"Be it resolved, That as a Rotary club we pledge to the officers and leaders of the Y. M. C. A. our full co-operation in work and gifts, in order that this important community agent may be effective in all its work, but especially in its work for the boys of our city."

Members of the Rotary club are in full accord with the Y. M. C. A. in its campaign for funds next week, as shown by the above resolution passed unanimously at the regular meeting Wednesday.

Four speakers—representing industry, banks, schools, and churches—addressed the Y. M. C. A. and urged the Rotary club to get the entire community to support the association for young men. The substance of the talks:

"I have been a member of the Y. M. C. A. and have been interested in its activities for the past 25 years or more. No community can do without the influence of such institutions as the church and the Y. M. C. A. The Y. is an institution which tends to lower the taxation in a community."

"Frank H. Jackman, president Rock County National bank.

"The Y. M. C. A. has held to a sane, constructive, straight-thinking program, steering clear from radical tendencies, but still progressive. General Motors officials in Detroit are deeply interested in and co-operating with the Y, especially as it relates to the educational program and studies for foremen in shops."

"L. A. Shuman, head of general department, Sausage Tractor company.

"The Y. M. C. A. is indispensable in the conduct of school life in the cities—it is continually co-operating with school officials in work pertaining to the school life of the boys. These activities are all carried on irrespective of membership in the Y. M. C. A., especially in promoting trade meets, swimming camps, baseball and basketball leagues."

"James M. Dorrans, principal vocational school.

"A cordial relationship of co-operation and helpfulness between the Y. M. C. A. and the church is taken for granted. The Y. is a permanent institution because of its emphasis along moral lines. The test of all things in the final analysis is the worthwhileness of the program as it relates to moral influences."

"The Y. J. A. Melrose, Presbyterian church.

All the speakers stressed that the Y. M. C. A. is an institution with a community program, reaching every young man and boy in Janesville, regardless of membership in the organization.

The same resolutions were adopted by the Kiwanis club at its luncheon Thursday noon.

- Build a Community Center and Convention Hall for the city for athletic, social, musical, and other purposes. This is also a part of a program to provide music and entertainment for the people of the year and to make the city a more attractive place.
- Keep the city looking bright and clean with paint and the streets free from filth.
- Either build a new hotel or so increase the facilities of the present hotels as to take care of the traveling public and be able to handle conventions.
- Finish the high school on an early date and give the children proper educational facilities.

JANESVILLE'S LARGEST 1921 CONVENTION.

Janesville should make more than ordinary preparation for the state convention of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities to be held on October 12 to 14. With the aid of Edgerton, its mayor and city officials attending the La Crosse convention last year, Janesville won the 1921 meeting of this important body. It may be said that Mayor Welsh also was indefatigable in presenting the merits of Janesville as a convention city. At the time of the meeting there should be proper decorations, and everything possible done for the hospitable entertainment of the city's guests, mayors and other city officials of the municipalities of the state, in the membership of the League.

The basic reason for the existence of the League is to discuss and act upon legislation for the benefit of the several cities, the agreement upon uniform laws, the discussion of topics vital to the cities themselves in operation, finance and other related topics. The league had much to do with the abolition of the special city charters of the state and the adoption of a new general state law. Its importance can therefore be understood and appreciated. Ample funds for the entertainment of the guests should be provided and the popular subscription for the purpose certainly ought to meet with immediate response.

Chicago seems to need a few men to watch the police.

THIS IS A POSITIVE NECESSITY.

The biggest asset to any community is its boys and girls. These assisting agents that help to make boys and girls better able to go forth when the time comes and meet and assist the world to progress and be worth while, are essential to every community. The term "battle of life" is not pleasing. It is the pessimistic idea of a fight. It ought not to be so. Fighting the world means fighting the people already in it. Combat grows wearisome and by and by the tendency is to let things go and drift along. Every boy and girl should be equipped to make the world better and to do something for any community in which they reside to make the place better for themselves and others. In this equipment work the Y. M. C. A. is a positive necessity. In Janesville, that necessity is even more emphasized than in other places where there are more centers from which radiate community service. For here in the Y. M. C. A., regardless of church or creed, of race or religion, of home environment or personal attainments, the boys may meet on common ground. No man can lift his hand and say that the Y. M. C. A. in Janesville ever justified any but a spirit of good citizenship and of higher and nobler attainments.

There would be no greater loss to the community than that the Y. M. C. A. should be crippled for lack of necessary funds or that it should ever be abandoned as a most valuable part of community service. Therefore it is due the Y. M. C. A. that the 15,293 people in the city of Janesville get together in harmonious accord and see that the Y. M. C. A. is again made financially safe for the coming year and able to function to the fullest extent in the excellent, necessary and positively forceful work and influence it has in the community.

THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT.

Indianapolis is the scene this week of the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. It is one of the last that will be held. Milwaukee is hoping for the next convention and we join in the hope that the largest Wisconsin city will be selected. Of course it will be only a few years longer that an encampment of the organizations of men who were the blue in the days of '61 will be held—no one will be left to meet. Twenty-four years ago the Grand Army at its encampment at Buffalo reached the apex of its reported attendance at an annual meeting. Since that time the marching men have fallen out of the ranks and the bivouac of the dead has claimed its greater share. With its end in sight as an organization, the plan proposed at Indianapolis that before it passes into history, it shall file its "last will and testament," is one of the pathetic yet inspiring events of our times.

It certainly is a rich heritage that the G. A. R. bequeaths to whomever it selects as its heir. From the battle front it came filled with the pride of the winner, to laugh at the fears of

A MODEL FAIR

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.
Toronto.—This place is appropriately named. For Toronto means place of meeting. The Indians named it when they gathered here to trade furs with the French, coming over Lake Ontario in their canoes, and trailing down from the forests. Now, on the same ground, where the Indians met, Canadians gather every fall at what has become the biggest annual exposition held anywhere—the Canadian National Exhibition.

Expositions and fairs are held all over Canada, much like our own state and local fairs. But the Toronto exhibition claims to hold the record for elaborateness, size, and popularity.

To Toronto, the exhibition is the event of the year. It has been an institution for 42 consecutive years. All year round, the 244 acres of Exhibition City on Lake Ontario stand practically deserted, with only caretakers to keep the buildings, mountains, band stands, lawns and flower beds in trim. But all the time the board of directors of the exhibition and their committees are working. They are making improvements for the next year. To be on the board is one of the most important honors Toronto can confer upon her leading citizens. The city is proud of the record that it has kept politics out of its exhibition.

When the affair opens, visitors pour into the city. They come not only from all over Canada, but from every state in the Union, and even a good many from South America and other more distant countries. For the Canadian National Exhibition is famous for being a model fair.

The fair grounds present the sort of panorama you get at a big exposition. There are long streets with more than a hundred stands running parallel wheels, ball tossing games and other contests. Not one of the games is a gambling device, you are told. The board of directors is firm about that. And prices are reasonable. The board makes the contracts with the concession holders, fixing fair prices, and a close watch is kept to see that there is no profiteering.

Beyond the games and amusements, and the big white eating tents, is the grandstand. When you consider that there were 30,000 children on this grand stand at three performances on Young Canada Day—30,000, at one time—you get an idea of the scale on which the Toronto exhibition has to be planned.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.
DOGS, CATS AND JAZZ.
Down in Washington, D. C., the apartment problem. Jenses being made now. Provide that jazz music shall be barred, as it is a menace to the peace and happiness of neighbors. This sort of music is classed with dogs, cats and parrots. Probably, also, tenants are forbidden to park Ford's in their apartments. It seems the landlords are very particular. But why knock the cats? By placing them in the same category with jazz? A good, respectable cat fight is pure harmony. It is pure harmony with some of the screech-owl jazz we have in our neighborhood. Also it is a knock on the parrots which must offend them tremendously. One parrot that could be dropped out of a jazz band would be welcome in any apartment house.

CONFESIONS OF A CYNIC.

I don't know exactly what Bernard Shaw thinks about anything, and I am getting to the point where I won't care a darn. I believe disarmament, but I also apply to the world any old fallacies and rolling pins should be scrapped. I believe it is time to stop worrying about the small nations and begin worrying about the big ones.

Who's Who Today

SENATOR BURSUM.
Holm O. Bursum, who was elected to the United States senate from New Mexico at last week's special election, began his political career in Washington after long political activity in his own state. He was appointed to the senate by Governor Mechem, March 11 last, and took his seat April 1, 1919, after defeating Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall.

Senator Bursum is a stock raiser. He was born at Fort Dodge, Ia., in 1857, but has resided in New Mexico since 1881. In 1899 and 1900 he was a member of the territorial senate and was a delegate to the Republican national convention in 1904, 1908 and 1912. In 1908 and 1912 he was a member of the Republican territorial central committee. He was forerunner of the constitutional convention in 1910, and since 1919 has been the Republican national committeeman.

Senator Bursum is a member of the civil service, military affairs, pensions, privileges and elections, and public lands and surveys committees of the senate.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Happy New York Kids!
These must be great days for New York city children who prefer vacation to school-time. The latest reports show that about 55,000 youngsters will have to go on short time. And this in spite of the fact that nine new schools have been added, and two of those already existing have been enlarged. But this is not all. It has already been announced that there is a new school for the city, and that the city will be closed soon for lack of funds and that bond issues, or other help from the state, will be required almost at once; also that all high school students will have to be instructed in a few days that the situation recently reported at the opening of a school session as a record-breaking attendance under the most gloomy prospects in the history of the board of education.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO
Sept. 29, 1881.—Janesville is enjoying some theatrical attractions, all going to the Myers opera house, the Grand Opera House, and the Grand Opera House. In the play of the French revolution, "Fanchette," October 2 and 4 Frederick Bryton will appear in "The Man in the Iron Mask."

THIRTY YEARS AGO
Sept. 29, 1891.—A large number are at the fair grounds today watching the races in spite of the cold weather. Alexander Salvini will appear in "The Grand Opera House" at the Myers opera house. He is one of the greatest of living actors. Two saloons here were raided last night but less than $100 secured.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
Sept. 29, 1901.—Sunday.

TEN YEARS AGO
Sept. 29, 1911.—It was announced at Rome at 2:30 this afternoon that a state of war existed between Italy and Turkey. Troops are being mustered by both countries to go to the aid of the Greek coast. The Greek coast is being prepared. Bargains for tomorrow are potatoes at 60 cents per bushel, butter at 30 cents per pound, canned peaches at 85 cents per bushel and 15 pounds of sugar for a dollar.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.
A BOWL OF APPLES AND A BOOK.
A bowl of apples and a book and a grate fire blazing high, what greater comfort can man possess, what deeper comfort buy?
So sit me down on the autumn nights with a book to thrill my soul, and I'll be content while the log fire burns and the apples fill the bowl.

For this is a dual life we lead, whatever a man believe, There's the life of strife with its hours of care and the hours that he must grieve, But his other life is a term of peace when he finds the cloistered nooks And walks and talks with the mystic friends in the pages of his books.

A night to read from the world apart, all perched and well content, With the changelings friends of the printed page, And the night to be spent? A fire that jumps as his fancies fly, is anything needed more?
Just a bowl of apples handy by from Autumn's golden store.

I've known rich joys in the years that were and look to the joys to be, But splendor giveth no peace like this to the restless soul of me, For these three make me a happy man, these three are my heart's desire, A bowl of apples and a book, and the blaze of an open fire.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author
CORINARO, WHO ATE MUCH
Luigi Corinaro (born 1464, died 1527), was a good practical octogenarian with a good practical text for the great sermon he preached and lived.
"Whoever wishes to eat much must eat little."
Like all other heralds of health and longevity before and since his time, Corinaro gave neither of these questionable maxims which he had attained the thoughtful age of 40: By the time a man turns 40 he begins to live or he begins to die. Too many of us, alas, are half dead even before we reach the great turning point. Corinaro could mount his horse unaided when he was over 80; he had all his senses intact, as well as his mind—or he was not dead, and walked his daily every day, and wrote with his own hand as much as eight hours a day—when he was past 90. Yet in his youth he was like our belated Roosevelt, a willing, though he did not, to undertake the rebuilding of his own constitution so early as the great American did. Not only his physical health was reformed, but his life after an orderly, temperate life after a life of his very temper changed from an unhappy, cheerful disposition to a cheerful, hopeful and eminently successful mind. Corinaro was a young man and never grew into dotage; he was not the sort of old man that people venture to pet and patronize.

Throughout his later decades Corinaro confidently anticipated a long life. He was a man who had extended the span many more years had he not wasted his youth in intemperance living. Just how serious these early excesses were, it is difficult to know; from the man's allusions to them one gathers that he refers to over-indulgence in food and drink, chiefly, if not entirely. Still, immorality and its attendant vices were far more dangerous than even today, and possibly Corinaro erred in more than intemperance in eating and drinking when he was a young man.

Another question about these great heralds of longevity is that we are told so little concerning their wives and children. Corinaro's wife survived him, and reached nearly his own age, yet we know very little about her than of living do we learn, save

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1921
Astrologers read this as a most unfortunate day, for although Venus is in benefic aspect early in the day, Mars and Uranus are in evil place. There will be bitter differences of opinion concerning disarmament. If the stars are read right, for Uranus, the planet that rules the mentality, is in evil place.

There will be sharp variations of opinion on many public matters and the minds of soldiers will be sensitive to sinister suggestions.

Mars is to have a strong influence in politics. If the stars are read right, it is to be a day of soldiers would ignore party ties more and more.

This should be a favorable day for theaters, and a new play will make an early success.

Love should be under kindly guidance during this rule of the stars, which inclines to romance.

They who wed under this planetary rule should be more than usually lucky since they should be harmonious in their views on life and helpful to each other's ambitions.

Uranus has power today to distort the public view of public affairs and may cause persons in high place to be unjustly criticized.

It is not a lucky day under which to make new acquaintances.

This is not a favorable day for inventors or those who have any dreams to sell.

The general condition of workers will improve in all parts of the world, and in Japan there will be a great awakening among the laboring classes.

Persons whose birthdate it is should not make any great changes, and very much care should be taken to avoid accidents. The young will court and marry.

Children born on this day may be restless, fond of pleasure and very temperamental. If a girl, she may not be wise in choosing her husband.

Dinner Stories

"Do you know what day this is, John, dear?"
"Unpleasant recollections of previous memory lapses flashed through John's mind. He wouldn't be caught this time!"
"Why, of course, my love. How could I possibly forget that this is our wedding anniversary?" he said, and it looked as if he were about to say "No, it isn't. That's three months ahead," she responded coldly. This is the day on which you, promised to take the afternoon off from the office and beat the rugs."

The scene is a country, national school in country Arizona. The teacher is explaining a lesson of tiny boys to an inspector. She asks top boy: "Johnny McDowell, who is the Supreme Being?"
"Johnny, in a tone of pleased contentment."

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author
CORINARO, WHO ATE MUCH
Luigi Corinaro (born 1464, died 1527), was a good practical octogenarian with a good practical text for the great sermon he preached and lived.
"Whoever wishes to eat much must eat little."
Like all other heralds of health and longevity before and since his time, Corinaro gave neither of these questionable maxims which he had attained the thoughtful age of 40: By the time a man turns 40 he begins to live or he begins to die. Too many of us, alas, are half dead even before we reach the great turning point. Corinaro could mount his horse unaided when he was over 80; he had all his senses intact, as well as his mind—or he was not dead, and walked his daily every day, and wrote with his own hand as much as eight hours a day—when he was past 90. Yet in his youth he was like our belated Roosevelt, a willing, though he did not, to undertake the rebuilding of his own constitution so early as the great American did. Not only his physical health was reformed, but his life after an orderly, temperate life after a life of his very temper changed from an unhappy, cheerful disposition to a cheerful, hopeful and eminently successful mind. Corinaro was a young man and never grew into dotage; he was not the sort of old man that people venture to pet and patronize.

Throughout his later decades Corinaro confidently anticipated a long life. He was a man who had extended the span many more years had he not wasted his youth in intemperance living. Just how serious these early excesses were, it is difficult to know; from the man's allusions to them one gathers that he refers to over-indulgence in food and drink, chiefly, if not entirely. Still, immorality and its attendant vices were far more dangerous than even today, and possibly Corinaro erred in more than intemperance in eating and drinking when he was a young man.

Another question about these great heralds of longevity is that we are told so little concerning their wives and children. Corinaro's wife survived him, and reached nearly his own age, yet we know very little about her than of living do we learn, save

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Milk Crust.
My three months old baby has a disagreeable crust of scaly curd on top of his head. It has been there several weeks. What can I do for it?
(Mrs. C. M.)
Answer.—First soften the crust by applying vasoline or sweet oil applied for a day or two. Then remove the crust with a blunt knife, and wash with a solution of 10 grains of salicylic acid in an ounce of olive oil once daily until the condition is overcome.

Fly Poison.
What poison will most quickly dispose of flies?
(P. S. H.)
One good fly poison not likely to harm children consists of three teaspoonfuls of soda for each quart of water with about three spoonfuls of brown sugar. Partly fill a glass with this solution, insert a tumbler upon a plate covered with a white blotting paper, place a match stick under one edge of the tumbler, set the tumbler on the plate, the flies can reach it. They will eat, drink, and be dead soon.

Practical Nurse.
Fourteen months ago I weaned my baby, but I am still much annoyed by secretion. An analysis of the secretion showed me I must apply camphorated oil twice a day, and I did so until the first but with no results. I have advised me what to do (Mrs. H. V. L.)
Answer.—Had the practical nurse not informed that you would have no trouble. Apply nothing whatever. Instead of stimulating, lactation, a policy of non-interference is all that is necessary from the hour nursing is discontinued.

BRAIN CLOT STOPS MEMORY OF NAMES

Davenport, Ia.—To have the "name cells" in the memory headquarters of the brain paralyzed by a blood clot so he did not remember any name, not even his own or those of his wife or son, is according to local physicians, the strange malady from which E. J. Carthy is recovering. Two weeks ago Mr. Carthy's tonsils, adenoids and turbinates were removed. After the operation the "name cells" in the brain refused to function. Carthy is regaining possession of his memory slowly.
